CENT. SAANICH COUNCIL SUPPORTS REFERENDUM

But Chief Will Be Hired Friday, Mayor Says

Police's Fate In Voter's Hands

Central Saanich will have a new police chief Friday. But that new chief may not have a police force to head after the Nov. 17 municipal elections.

That was the message council and Mayor Archie Galbraith had for taxpayers at a council meeting Tuesday night.

Council all but promised taxpayers a referendum on the policing issue would be held in November, after receiving a 1,558-signature petition asking for the question to be put to the vote.

Only two aldermen-Dave Hill and Tom Michell-refused to support the move to force the question to referendum, though each member of council said he was sorry the issue had become political.

Galbraith told the 30 spectators at the meeting that the police commission had scheduled a meeting Friday to name a new chief from among the 17 applicants for the job, but added the man named to the post would be told of the impending referendum to decide the fate of the force he was being hired to head.

The petition asking for the referendum was presented by C.W. Mollard, 7152 Maber, who told council the signatures on the document "spoke for themselves."

Only five per cent of those asked to sign the petition had refused to do so, he added.

Galbraith then called on aldermen for comment.

Hill said he was "dead against" taking the policing issue to referendum, adding he would stake his political career on his stand. He said a public poll on the composition of a police force would "make a mockery" of the current force and would probably result in the preservation of the status quo.

He likened the request for a referendum to a question put to the voters earlier this year, when Central Saanich taxpayers asked to have the issue of neighborhood pubs put to the vote.

He said 3,000 taxpayers had petitioned council for the referendum, which was soundly defeated at the polls.

"I'm dead set against subjecting our force" to the ordeal a referendum would bring, he said.

Ald. Jean Butler disagreed, pointing out that the signatures on the petition presented Tuesday represented "60 per cent of the voters" of the municipality.

"I feel I must support their request," she added.

Ald. Percy Lazarz said he disagreed with the idea of a referendum, but added he had been elected on a promise to "do what the people wish."

"I will do so again," he said.

Ald. Zachary Hamilton said he "deplored the idea that our police force has become a political issue," but added "if the people want a referendum, give it to them."

"I'm very sorry to see this come about," Ald. Ray Lamont said; "I thought we had made a decision in February."

"This is going to be a political issue in November, and I'm sorry about that, too."

"But we are the servants of the taxpayers and we must act accordingly."

He added the people must decide at the polls whether they want to control policing costs through council, or to contract municipal policing out to the RCMP and lose that control.

"It's too bad this has happened," Michell said.

"I've always had great faith in our police department."

Enchanting, Exhausting -But Fair Featured Fun

30,000 ATTEND FESTIVITIES AT SAANICH FALL FAIR

BY STEPHEN BREWER
(SPECIAL TO THE SIDNEY REVIEW)

In a stall in the dairy cattle section, four-year-old Brian Wallace sat comforting his Jersey calf.

The calf, frightened and nervous after three days at the 105th annual Saanich Fall fair, needed comforting.

So did Brian, who looked exhausted after his three days at the fair.

Brian and his calf were two of more than 30,000 who attended the three-day fair at the Saanich fairgrounds, making the observance one of the most successful in the fair's 105-year history.

The Saanich Fall Fair - one of the oldest events of its kind in Canada - was a medley of events this year, as it is each year.

Good weather graced the three days of the event, as it has for almost every fair in memory.

Stuart Stoddart, a peninsula resident since 1922, said he could remember only one time when rain had virtually cancelled the fair.

"That was sometime in the 1940's," Stoddart said. "It just didn't stop; it curtailed everything."

That didn't happen this year, though: the only rain was a light, brief drizzle late Saturday afternoon - it was so light it went unnoticed by many fairgoers.

Exhibits at the fair did not.

A steady stream of visitors toured each building on the fairgrounds, making cooing noises at the rabbits, laughing at the swine and drooling at the displays of home-baked goodies in the home arts section.

One of the major attractions - any fair - the carnivals midway -

SIDNEY REC COMPLEX TO REFERENDUM

Private Project No Deterrent

To November Vote

Sunday morning an out-of-town newspaper released a story indicating that a proposed recreation centre financed by private funds, would be built ahead of any Sidney complex.

However, with but one dissenting vote, Sidney council remains undaunted in its efforts to secure town approval for its own complex.

It was readily apparent at Tuesday night's committee meeting that the majority of aldermen did not quite believe the Central Saanich project would really get off the ground as quickly as the Sunday morning news report indicated.

They intend to allow the citizens to make their choice on the matter known when a referendum is held in November in conjunction with the civic elections.

Alderman Peter Malcolm said that he had telephoned one of the directors connected with the proposed central Saanich complex. While declining to mention specifically who the gentleman was, he said that the man concerned had no money in the

Central Saanich Centre Plans May Be Abandoned

'If Sidney Builds, We Won't,' Director Tells The Review

A proposed $1.5 million privately-owned recreation complex in Central Saanich may not be built if the Town of Sidney decides to go ahead with a similar complex, a director of the company contemplating the centre told The Review Tuesday.

"If Sidney goes ahead, I don't think we will," Geoff Vantreigh said in a telephone interview.

The statement came just three days after the acting chairman of the company told a Victoria daily newspaper, construction on the private complex was slated to begin within 10 days.

Murray Stockall, acting head of Western Recreational Resources Ltd., re-affirmed that statement Tuesday, when he told The Review "everything is ready to go" at the 11-acre site in the intersection of Central Saanich Road and Mt. Newton Cross Road.

Construction should start within two weeks, Stockall said.

He could not give any estimate for completion of the project, he added, because "it depends on so many things we can't control."

Stockall described Sidney council's public meeting last week to explore public reaction to a tax-financed complex near Tulista Park as instance of "unfortunate timing."

He denied that his company's announcement Friday - that it was about to begin construction - had been influenced by the Sidney meeting, where about 250 people voiced enthusiastic support of council's proposal.

Western Recreational had been sitting on its announcement for several weeks, Stockall said, because the national railroad strike had cast the start of construction into doubt.

The announcement Friday was made because an end to the strike

Gardner - Salvador Rites Held At Holy Trinity

Holy Trinity Church in North Saanich was the scene of a late afternoon wedding Aug. 4, when Laurie Isabel, younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Salvador, of Sidney, became the bride of Philip, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. Gardner, of Comox, B.C.

The bride made a winsome picture in a sleeveless gown of white peau de soie, featuring a lace bodice and ruffled, standup neckline.

Her veil was a delightful mantilla of Spanish lace and she carried an arm bouquet of mums.

The bride's sister, Mrs. Jan Jones of Sidney, was matron of honor; bridesmaid was Dianne Fisher, of Creston. Both wore silk organza gowns of blue check pattern, enhanced with a daisy motif.

They carried nosegays of white daisies.

Best man was Ofoe (Percy) Christian-Quao, of Accra, Ghana, West Africa, and ushers were Jon and Jay Salvador.

Receiving guests at Sidney Travelodge, the mother of the bride was wearing a gown of off-white, with a top of rust. The gown glittered with golden threads.

The groom's mother chose a burgundy and white floral design for her gown.

The three-tiered cake, made by the bride's mother, was ornamented with pale yellow bells and roses and topped by two dainty doves of white.

The Rev. R. Sanson officiated at the wedding.

230 PERSONS TREATED FOR WASP STINGS . . .

Two hundred and thirty persons were treated for wasp stings by members of the St. John's Ambulance Corps during the three day Saanich Fair. This figure does not include those people who were stung and did not seek treatment at the emergency centre set up in a hall at the fair grounds.

"We had them lined up four deep," said Mrs. Marjorie Allen, one of the Corps members. She explained that Monday afternoon was the worst period for wasp stings during the entire fair. "Some people suffered from sunburn and we had one suspected fractured ankle but nothing really serious."

There were some 10 volunteers from the Corps on duty at one time or another during the fair. Those pictured above are, from left to right: Mrs. Marjorie Allen; Mrs. M. Lovejoy; Mrs. Kathy Simon; and Mrs. Betty Doran.

75 Year Old Man Reaches Sidney On Epic Row

A 75 year old man on passage from Victoria's Inner Harbour to Nanaimo put into Sidney on Monday following a 22 mile row.

Lambert Good, rowing a small dinghy, had an enjoyable trip as far as the Beacon Avenue wharf but did admit to being 'a trifle weary.'

He is making the engineless row to promote the art of rowing - a sport he has engaged in since a child.

"My dad was a champion B.C. rower in the 1890's" he said. "He used to take us rowing between Nanaimo and Victoria. We'd camp in different spots. 'I just want to do it one more time.'"

Mr. Good, who, two years ago, participated with distinction in the Great Sidney Rowing Review, had weighted his craft down with sand bag ballast. "It was too tippy without it!"

Mr. Good intends to pass through Sidney on the return leg of his journey.

Buoy Slated For Dangerous Pass Near Sidney

Department Of Transport Investigation Following Review Story

ROCK TO BE DRILLED NEXT SPRING

A recent Review story, penned by Marine Editor Joshua Perlmutter, has resulted in an investigation launched by the Department of Transport over the possible marking of a hazardous rock in Page Passage near Canoe Cove. The rock, situated in the middle of the pass is navigated over by scores of yachts and commercial craft throughout the year; however, during the lowest tides of the summer it is but three feet below the surface. (Perlmutter had his photograph taken whilst standing atop it).

During these low tides numerous pleasure craft collide with the obstacle. Indeed, some large commercial vessels as well have come to grief there and nearby residents fear there could some day be actual loss of life.

The following letter from Mr. L.E. Slaght, Department of Transport, was received this week by the Review:

"We were not previously aware that there was a problem at Page Passage, and as a result of your information a site investigation has been carried out."

"Our Aids to Navigation Committee has reviewed the matter, and although there is some reluctance to mark what could best be described as a secondary passage, it has been decided in view of the number of accidents and the location of the northerly rock in mid channel that the installation of a buoy at that location is justified."

"However, because of the prevalence of cables in the area, it is not considered wise to use a conventional mooring and anchor which might be subjected to dragging."

"Accordingly we propose to drill the rock and anchor the buoy to a rock bolt."

"Since the rock is charted as a minimum depth of 3 feet and since it would be impractical to work at a greater depth than this, it is proposed to effect the installation on the lower low waters which will occur in May of next year."

"We will be in touch with you at that time to let you know of our progress."

ANNOUNCING DO-IT-YOURSELF L.I.P.

Your Local Initiatives Program is even more local.

This year, $83 million is going to be invested in helping people help themselves in their community.

If yours is a typical community, we're putting the "local" into the Local Initiatives Program by setting up a Constituency Advisory Group, or by having L.I.P. staff consult with already established groups. So now you help decide which projects will contribute most to everybody.

On the Constituency Advisory Group will sit a good representation from the community, including people active in community affairs, people from local government and social agencies, and L.I.P. sponsors from last year, all suggested by your M.P.

Your project could have up to $75,000 to work with, if your idea is a highly creative and innovative one.

To qualify for L.I.P. funds, your project must create not less than 15 man-months of employment. Workers with the skills required for your project must be available within your community. Project sponsors must hire all employees through Canada Manpower Centres. Deadline for applications is October 15th, 1973, though early submissions could result in projects starting as early as December 1st. In northern or isolated areas, projects could start as early as November 1st. Projects may be funded for up to six months.

There's Do-it-Yourself Business L.I.P., too, for companies which want to provide facilities or services for their communities. Projects are not to be related to business operations, and must create additional jobs.

All it takes is one good idea.

THE GOOD TIMES ARE BACK.

HOUSING DEVELOPERS TRIED RECENTLY TO GET AROUND THE WATER RESTRICTION-CONSTRUCTION "FREEZE" BY DRILLING PRIVATE WELLS TO SUPPLY A PROPOSED SUBDIVISION. AN INTERESTING IDEA--BUT REJECTED BY COUNCIL.

MAYBE...IF THE "SUPPLY-YOUR-OWN-WATER" IDEA WAS CARRIED A BIT FURTHER...

Prepared To Fight

Because of space limitations, one story in this newspaper last week was more notable for what was left out than for what was included.

The article concerned an address to Sidney Council by Saanich Peninsula Hospital Board chairman Louis Lindholm.

Mr. Lindholm's remarks were primarily to do with the possible construction of a seventy-five bed acute care facility, in conjunction with the extended care hospital now nearing completion on its Mount Newton Cross Road site.

The concluding paragraphs of that story (and the part that was inadvertently cut from the story) outlined Mr. Lindholm's views of what would happen should the acute care phase be abandoned.

The provision of the acute care beds was, Lindholm said, something that the local Hospital Board considered an obligation on the part of the Capitol Regional Hospital District, although the exact amount of money that might be spent on the addition is still an open question.

"The whole question of where acute (care) facilities should be (located) is a very vexing one," Lindholm told the Council, adding, in reference to the total $22.5 million provided in the last hospital referendum: "Unquestionably, there's going to be all kinds of demand for (this) money."

Discussing newspaper reports to the effect that the peninsula beds had been "shelved" by the Capitol Region, Mr. Lindholm claimed that it would be very hard for the Regional body to reverse their promise of an acute care hospital for this area. "And we don't intend to make it easy to reverse."

Lindholm left no doubt, as well, that the local hospital board are firm in their resolve that an acute care hospital will be built here.

Referring to the listing of the peninsula hospital in an addendum to the $22.5 million referendum, the board chairman told Council that he and his fellow directors considered this a "public trust."

And, if the Capitol Region should attempt to go back on this promise, "then we must be prepared to fight," Lindholm concluded.

We feel that the peninsula is indeed fortunate to have a man of Mr. Lindholm's drive and intelligence representing our interests-and if this matter ever comes to a showdown, we can assure him of considerable support in any attempt to hold the Capitol Region to its word.

We're Still Waiting

Tuesday morning's mail brought to our office a public relations release from the Federal Department of Public Works, that ought to be of more than passing interest to many Sidney residents and especially to Chamber of Commerce president Karel Drost.

Subject of the release is: "Dredging operations and construction of a wharfhed and float...at Shoal (Tsehum) Harbour, B.C., under a $68,400 contract award to Pacific Piledriving Co. Ltd., of Victoria..."

"The work is expcted to be completed in six months," the communique goes on.

While announcement of this project may seem to be welcome news to users of the Government wharf near Rest Haven hospital, they might well discuss it with Mr. Drost before giving full vent to their joy.

Mr. Drost's story has to do not with the wharf in Tsehum Harbour, but with Sidney's other Government wharf at the foot of Beacon Avenue.

Late last winter, the story goes, a similar contract was let to the same piledriving firm for reconstruction of the floats at the Beacon wharf - at a cost in excess of $40,000.

The contract called for completion during the spring - long before the floats would be needed by Sidney's annual onslaught of water-borne visitors.

When the contract deadline came and went, with no apparent activity on the part of the contractor, Mr. Drost began asking pointed questions of the Federal Government - in his capacity as Chamber of Commerce president.

Answers were slow in coming, but finally a reply was received claiming that the delay was due

Letters To The Editor

Editor, The Review, Sir:

In his letter of last week, H. Shield referred to the indiscriminate "felling" of trees in this and other beautiful residential areas...etc. etc....

I do not propose to become involved in a debate regarding the rights of property owners to "fall" trees but I am concerned about the use of the term "felling".

Having been exposed to much forest jargon for the past few years, I now understand that the act of cutting down a tree is "felling" it. The "fellow" who "falls" it is a "faller" and only when the tree is down does the "a" change to "e" and it has been "felled".

And just in case you might think fallers are fall guys, remember they make real good money falling trees. So don't fall into the trap of using felling when you really mean falling.

I know we are all fallible but it is folly for any fellow to use some authority like the Oxford dictionary on these matters when there are so many skilled fallers around falling trees and speaking freely about their feats.

It is frightfully easy to pick up the lingo so I suggest, Mr. Shield, that you just go across the road and converse with these fine fellows next time they are "falling" in your neighbourhood.

Editor, The Review, Sir:
Re: Sidney Softball, 1973

I wish, through your paper, to express our thanks to the members of all the Sidney teams, and umpires, for the many hours of pleasure they offered us during the past season.

These young men - and some not so young - played their best and were deserving of all the support our citizens can give them.

In these days when hate and jealousy appear to be the dominant attitude of men and nations, it was a heart-felt pleasure to see an opposing player congratulate his opponent for making a home run or executing a difficult fielding play.

These men were an inspiration and an example to our youth, who are just starting their athletic careers.

We also wish to thank the ladies who worked so hard in the concession, catering to our hunger and thirst.

Wishing you one and all a well-earned rest and looking forward with anticipation to next season's games.

Editor, The Review, Sir:

I think it was Sunday afternoon when I had the pleasure of seeing the "Powindah" heading south through Page Pass.

Not only is she a very handsome and romantic looking vessel, but she was doing about four knots with scarcely a ripple: when clear of the floats on Fernie Island she resumed her cruising speed of perhaps seven knots.

A few minutes later a vessel of similar tonnage, but with no grace or beauty in my eyes, followed her at about thirty knots.

The "driver" on the starboard side of the flying bridge turned his head and looked back to watch the old man rowing a skiff receive the full benefit of his wash.

He was, of course, half a mile away and was therefore unable to enjoy the sight of the numerous boats doing furious battle with the floats to which they were moored.

Such is the tyranny of small minds with large horsepower.

Peninsula, Saanichton 4H Clubs Capture 41 Awards at PNE

Peninsula 4H beef clubs carried off at least 41 awards at Vancouver's 1973 Pacific National Exposition, PNE officials announced this week.

The Saanich Peninsula Club won 28 awards at the exposition and the Saanichton Club won 13, a PNE release said.

Peninsula Club winners included Doug Bickford, who won a special competition and had his steer named grand champion and champion Limosin.

John Speller's steer was named senior champion in the beef showmanship competition, as well as grand champion in the showmanship class.

In the 676 to 873 pound sale class, Anita Dinsdale and Richard Jones got top honors for their cattle, which weighed in at 865 and 860 pounds.

Rhonda Smith took a third in that same class, with an entry weighing in at 860 pounds.

Three third place entries were the club's reward in the sale class, 877 to 920 pound division, with honors going to Gordon Adams, whose entry weighed 905 pounds, Sian Davies, 895 pounds, and Brett Trimble, 895 pounds.

Two first place winners and three second place finishers were recorded for the Saanich Peninsula Club in the sale class, 922 to 965 pounds.

MORE SALES WINNERS

Bev Dellamere, whose entry weighed 930 pounds, and Leslie Croll, 940 pounds, shared first place in the sale class, 922 to 965 pounds, sales class.

Three other Saanich Peninsula Club members - Nevil Dinsdale, 945 pounds, Richard Arneson, 955 pounds, and Robbie Calnan, 960 pounds - took second places in that class.

In the 966 to 922 pound sales class, Douglas Lane took a first place with his 985 pound entry, with Terry Adams, Daryl Green and Gordon McLeod capturing second places with entries which weighed 980, 990 and 990 pounds.

Two first places went to the Saanich Peninsula Club in the 1,036 to 1,081 pound sales class: Jeff McLeod, with an entry weighing 1,050 pounds, and Dave Patterson, with an 1,055 pound entry, were each accorded first-class honors in that event.

The Peninsula Club's Eddie Leahy took a third in the class, with a 1,080 pound entry.

Entries weighing 1,120, 1,165 and 1,120 pounds won three Peninsula Club members first places in the 1,082 to 1,140 pound sales class: winners were David Milburn, Douglas Bickford and Phyllis Dellamere.

Sheri Adams took a second place in that class, with an entry which tipped the scales at 1,085 pounds.

John Speller was the lone Peninsula Club winner in the 1,141 to 1,372 pound sales class, taking a first place with his 1,155 pound entry.

SAANICHTON WINNERS

In the show classes, the Peninsula Club took a back seat to entries from the Saanichton Club: Only two Peninsula Club entries took prizes in those classes.

Dana Trimble's Hereford heifer took a first place in the breeding class, while Gail Patterson's heifer took a second in the open breeding heifer class.

The Saanichton Club won five of its 13 awards in the show classes:

Wayne Cuthbert's entry took a first place prize in the Hereford heifer breeding class.

An entry by Karen Varley took a second in the same class, while Philip Cuthbert and Kenzie Cuthbert took thirds.

The club finished second overall in the beef calves section of the show classes, placing behind the Langley 4H Club.

The Saanichton Club finished second - again behind Langley - in the inter-club heifer competition.

In the sales classes, Saanichton Club member Kevin Kennedy took a second place in the 675 to 873 pound class, with an entry weighing 862 pounds.

Ken Webber also took a second in that class, with an 837 pound entry.

Two Saanichton girls - Debbie Callander and Monica Rach - took second places in the 877 to 920 pound sales class, with entries weighing 880 and 877 pounds.

Ben Cuthbert took a first place with his 970 pound entry in the 966 to 922 pounds sales class.

Wendy Callander managed a third with her 1,012 pound entry in the 993 to 1,035 pound sales class event.

HOW WOULD AN EXPERT APPRAISE YOUR HOME?

It is a common experience for a Realtor to list a home for sale and, in a week or so, receive an offer very close to the listed price only to have the seller refuse it. Then, unfortunately, the Realtor is never able to obtain as good an offer again.

Why? The problem usually comes from an unrealistically high price which the Realtor agreed to try against his better judgement.

The owner is usually the unwitting loser in this "let's give it a try" school of pricing. Properties often have a maximum of only two or three good prospective buyers at a given time and later price reductions may be too late to interest the right prospects, who have bought elsewhere.

An expert appraisal answers three basic questions: the value of your property in relation to other similar properties being sold or offered in your neighborhood; the cost of needed maintenance as it affects the property's appearance; and the influence upon the final selling price of the methods of financing.

Where can a home owner obtain an accurate appraisal?

From a professional appraiser or a Realtor possessing wide practical experience, current knowledge of the market and a thorough grounding in real estate procedures and methods. You require nothing less than the best man you can get.

Saanichton Poet Featured In Van Isle Volume

A Saanichton poet's work has been included in a newly-published volume of poetry.

The book, published in June by Victoria's Soft Press, is billed as a contemporary anthology of Vancouver island poetry by its editors, Robert Sward, Tim Groves and Mario M. Martinelli.

It contains a total of 73 individual pieces, almost all of them by Vancouver Island poets and most of them being printed for the first time.

Of the total, only one poem is printed which is listed as having been written by a Saanich Peninsula poet, Colin Browne, who lives in a quarry near Saanichton.

Browne is currently employed by the Provincial Museum in Victoria, his biography says, where he presumably spends most of his days.

When he does his writing isn't explained in VANCOUVER ISLAND POEMS, but one presumes it is done mostly at night or on the weekends.

Despite that, he has already published two previous volumes of his poetry: DOWN THE SUNLINE (in 1970) and LAMENTS OF THE DYING BOY (in 1972).

Somewhere in there, he also finds time to edit and publish his own line of books, Granny Soot Publications.

Not surprisingly, he found time to contribute only one piece for VANCOUVER ISLAND POEMS.

But "FROM BROB-DINGNAD I" is a significant contribution to the book, itself a significant contribution to the promotion of poetry from the island.

The book almost didn't happen Sward says in an introduction.

The editors began looking for material for it in 1971.

"We gave up hope of producing such a book until fairly recently," Sward says, and the volume was actually produced in "six months of intensive work and a concentrated outlay of time, energy and patience."

The volume presents "a sampling...of new, previously unpublished work by Vancouver Island poets," he adds.

The book is essentially an experiment "in idealism, in finances, in poetics and aesthetics"; it is an experiment which one hopes will succeed.

The editors "solicited manuscripts from high schools and the University (of Victoria). We've solicited through the local newspapers and by word of mouth. We've literally gone out into the street looking for poetry," Sward says.

They were successful in their quest; for anyone who likes poetry, VANCOUVER ISLAND POEMS is a must.

Sidney Police News

Three persons were seriously injured in a two-car accident at the intersection of the Patricia Bay Highway and Wains Road last Wednesday, Sidney RCMP reported this week.

Mary Froderberg, 36, of Belingham, Wash., and her seven-year-old daughter, Ann, were both injured in the accident, as was 62-year-old Helen Trousil, of Chilliwack, police said.

The accident which sent the three to hospital occurred at 2:30 p.m.

Police report a vehicle driven by Helen Rogak, 36, of 618 Lands End, was hit by a truck driven by Harvey Trousil, 65, of 10980 Chalet, as it was turning left onto McDonald Park Road off the highway.

The Rogak vehicle in which Mrs. Froderberg and her daughter were passengers was southbound, the Trousil vehicle northbound on the highway at the time of the accident.

No charges were reported in the accident, in which damage has been set at $3,000.

Charges of driving without due care and attention were laid against a Victoria man after a one-car accident Friday at the intersection of the Patricia Bay Highway and McDonald Park Road, Sidney RCMP said Tuesday.

Jules Boux, 71, was charged after the pick-up truck he was driving failed to negotiate a turn on the highway near the intersection, going out of control and jumping a median before hitting a highway sign, police said.

The accident, which occurred at 6:15 a.m., caused an estimated $900 damage.

No injuries were reported.

Charges of driving without due care and attention have been laid against a Victoria man who fell asleep at the wheel of his car Friday.

Wayne Fischer, 21, was charged after the car he was driving ran a stop sign and careened into a ditch near the entrance to the Patricia Bay Airport at 11:15 p.m. Aug. 31, Sidney RCMP reported this week.

No injuries were reported in the single-car accident, in which damage has been set at $2,000.

Charges of turning when unsafe have been laid against a 48-year-old Sidney woman following a two-car accident Aug. 28

Madeline Service, of 2039 Courser, was charged with the offence following the 2:15 p.m. accident, Sidney RCMP reported Tuesday.

Police said the accident occurred when Mrs. Service, who was southbound on the highway, turned in front of a northbound vehicle driven by James Warry, 34, of West Vancouver.

Warry hit the Service vehicle after slamming on his brakes in an attempt to avoid the turning car, police said.

No injuries were reported in the accident, in which damage to both cars has been set at between $400 and $450.

seems likely, he hinted. But WRR's announcement does seem to have thrown the future of the Sidney proposal into doubt. Sidney Mayor Stan Dear told the Victoria paper he was not sure council will stand behind the tax-financed structure in light of the private company's announcement.

The Sidney centre was to be built only four-and-a-half miles north of the Central Saanich site. Both centres call for inclusion of a regulation-size ice arena, heated swimming pools and ice sheets for curling. WRR's proposal also makes provision for inclusion of a lounge.

Stockall's announcement last week also made public, for the first time, the names of Western Recreational's directors.

Those named included Claude Butler, Marc Croteau, Alex Izatt, Vince Patterson, Melvin Jeffrey, Vantreight, Len Wakeman, Harold Wright and George Wheaton.

But at least three of those named were caught off guard by Friday's announcement, they told The Review in telephone interviews Tuesday.

And Wheaton added he is not even a director of the company. "I've been approached to serve on the board," he told The Review, "but have not yet accepted the position."

"Therefore I'm in no position to speak for the company."

"I was very surprised at the story in the weekend paper."

Izatt and Vantreight both said they had little or no idea of what was going on in regards to the private complex.

"I don't know what's going on, I just got home," Izatt said.

One of the men originally named a director of WRR, he said the men on the board were providing the financing for the project, which may cost as much as $2 million.

He said he had "no comment" on the Sidney proposal.

Vantreight said he had been a member of the board only a short time, adding he "has just been to a couple of meetings."

was jammed with people on all three days of the fair.

Children between eight and 80 screamed and shouted, then lined up for more at the Ferris wheel, the Twister and the Octopus.

Similar lines stretched back from each refreshment booth on the grounds, as volunteer workers dished out hot dogs, hamburgers and fresh corn on the cob.

Crowds gathered for each special event, watching intently as young performers danced the sailor's hornpipe, as equestrians of all ages made the jumps in the horse show, as about 30 contestants threw eggs at one another in the farm games Saturday.

A beauty contest for cows drew enthusiastic applause, as did performances by the Skylark Singers, the Midnight Ramblers and bands of roving musicians.

Displays of modern farm machinery - put on show by equipment dealers from all over the peninsula - delayed fairgoers on their way to watch working displays of old-time farm machinery all three days of the fair.

A dance Saturday night drew a large, enthusiastic crowd... but just about everything at the fair did.

It was, all-in-all, a tremendous success story.

The only unwelcome guests were wasps, who blanketed the grounds all weekend.

The important thing at the fair, for the exhibitors at least, was the judging.

The results of all that labor will be summarized in future editions of The Review.

REC REFERENDUM

project and that he had only been to two director's meetings.

"As of yesterday," said Malcolm, "this director indicated that they did not have their financing solved."

Alderman Malcolm also pointed out that this director had been given his post following last Tuesday's public meeting in Sanscha Hall, where a large gathering of Sidney residents voiced their approval for a recreation centre to be built in Sidney.

"Wasn't he a director before that?" asked the mayor.

"No, not prior to last Tuesday," replied Malcolm. "This gentleman asked what Sidney council was going to do. I said I could only speak for myself, but that I felt we should go for the whole ruddy complex. He quite frankly admitted that their project was not quite as iron-clad as the press would have us believe."

Alderman Chris Andersen had also phoned one of the directors involved in the Central Saanich scheme.

"He was not aware of the news release," related Andersen. "At the last meeting, he was told by the promoters that they were starting to get out of financial difficulties, but he did not know exactly when they were going ahead."

"I think we are all in favor of going to a referendum," said Alderman Wilkie Gardner.

Mayor Stan Dear explained that time was of the essence. Council has until October 31 to submit for a grant to assist in financing the centre.

However, Alderman Fred Robinson stressed more than once that it did not make sense to build two recreation centres.

He was countered by Alderman Pat Merrett stating that the Central Saanich announcement had been contrived "to throw a monkey wrench into our plans. People in Sidney and this end of the peninsula would be bound to support our complex. Why would they drive into Central Saanich?"

The mayor pointed out that even if the Sidney project was given the go-ahead by the voters "if something came up it doesn't mean we have to build the centre."

Andersen, his voice rising insistently, said that he could not see how the Central Saanich project built with private funds could compete with a public owned centre in Sidney. "I doubt that they would be offering the rates that we could offer. They wouldn't get a return on their investment if they did."

"Well, I think we are moving too darn fast," said Alderman Robinson. "I'm not trying to be an obstructionist but then again, I'm not prepared to see something railroaded."

Following 36 minutes of discussion, the motion to hold a referendum in November over the issue of a Sidney recreation centre was carried by a vote of 6 to 1 around the council table.

Police's In Voter's Hands

Michell would not commit himself one way or the other on the question of whether to take the issue to referendum, saying he wouldn't give his answer until he sees figures on comparative costing. "I don't believe in petitions of this sort," he added.

Mayor Galbraith pointed out the petition submitted to council Tuesday does not call for policing by any specific force, either RCMP or municipal.

The petition asks only for a referendum and for comparative costing, the mayor said.

"I can tell you right now what the cheapest form of policing is," he said. "It's the RCMP. With a subsidy for three men, no one else can compete financially." He said, as he saw it, there are two alternatives to the current municipal force: the RCMP or a merger with the Saanich police force, to form a Metropolitan Saanich police body.

He has not discussed the second proposal with Saanich, he added. While a clear majority of council went on record favoring the asked-for referendum, no official decision was made Tuesday to put the policing issue on the ballot. Council did not indicate when it will make that decision.

TWO GRAND CHAMPIONSHIPS

Two Sidney entries carried off four prizes in the sheep and horse show competitions at Vancouver's Pacific National Exposition over the weekend.

Mrs. William J. Kierans, 738 Towner Park Road, and D. Douglas Evans, 10542 McDonald Park Road, both captured two prizes each at the PNE, releases from the exposition's headquarters said Tuesday.

Mrs. Kiernans took a third place ribbon riding her Arabian stallion, Sa'ika, in the third section of the PNE horse show Saturday.

The day before, she took fifth place riding the same horse in the Arabian English Pleasure heats of the show.

Evans took an eighth place in the market lambs section of the sheep competition with his pen of three lambs, each weighing between 70 and 90 pounds.

His ram, SU Quamichan Down 4D, took ninth place in two-tooth ram class in the Shropshires-Suffolks class on Wednesday.

METER MAN WITH NO METERS But George Patrols The Street

Being the man who hands out parking tickets in downtown Sidney isn't the kind of thing designed to make a man a lot of friends. But George Glass -- the commissioner who does the job -- doesn't seem to have any problem winning friends. The Review accompanied George on one of his rounds this week, in an attempt to discover just what is involved in the job of being the parking inspector.

His rounds aren't very long -- he walks from in front of the post office down Beacon to the Sidney Hotel, then crosses the street and comes back the same way, going as far as Fifth.

It takes him about half-an-hour to make those rounds, during which he will mark the tires of the cars he passes with a piece of chalk taped to an old golf club.

When he gets back to the post office, he'll hand out a ticket to any car with a chalk mark on its tire -- the parking slots in front of the post office are posted for 15 minute parking.

Sound easy? It's not too hard; if that's all George had to do, his job would probably bore him to tears.

OTHER 'WORK' It isn't all he has to do, though. As we walked down Beacon on Thursday, George was stopped before we had covered even half a block.

A man and his wife -- Yankee tourists, by the look of them -- stopped him and asked him where they could get a bite to eat.

They picked him to ask because of his commissioner's uniform, and because he looked official. He directed them to any one of several cafes, accepted their thanks, then continued down the street.

As we walked, he told us it would be almost impossible to categorize the people to whom he and his predecessors have handed out almost 2,000 tickets in the last few years.

Almost everybody, from every walk of life, overparks, it seems...and almost everybody, at one time or another, gets caught doing it -- if not by George, then by a parking inspector in some other city.

There are two areas in Sidney which cause most of George's professional headaches: the 15-minute slots in front of the post office and the commercial loading zones in front of (and beside) many of the businesses along Beacon.

George didn't have to explain about either -- as we walked, a large truck pulled into the curb in front of a meat market, ignoring the yellow curb (which means no parking).

As the driver jumped out to quickly unload his wares, another man in the cab of the truck engaged George in conversation: "Do you have a driver?"

George asked. "Yeah, sure, he's around the back...but, say, where are we supposed to park this thing?"

"Somebody in the loading zone around to the side?" "Yeah, captain...oh, here's the driver now...I guess we better move."

"Yes, do that."

MERCHANTS BAD PARKERS As the truck rumbles off down the street, George says that particular problem is a rare one. The truckers, he says, are among the least of his worries.

His usual problem is having to give someone a ticket for parking in the truckers' loading zones...for just a few minutes. Those "few minutes", he adds, can mean the trucker will have to park in the road, blocking traffic, while he unloads and delivers goods to a store.

Another problem is store owners parking in front of their own businesses, George says, though most will move their cars to off-street spots when they see George go by first thing in the morning.

They probably leave their cars in the time-limited slots those days they don't see him go past, though.

But in spite of all this, George has had to give out very few tickets since he started his job last October.

Many go on tourist vehicles, who usually escape paying the two-dollar fine for overparking.

The fine, George explains, is taken care of in a novel way: council has issued him with a set of orange stickers, to be affixed to tickets he places on out-of-province offenders.

"Welcome to Sidney," the stickers say.

"As a visitor to our town, the penalty assessed to you in this parking ticket is waived, but your observance of the parking regulations will be appreciated."

There aren't many repeat violators from out-of-province, George says.

BARGAIN PAVING JOB FOR SIDNEY

The town of Sidney got a partial present recently, when a paving contractor inadvertently paved one more block than their contract called for.

It was entirely the contractor's mistake, Mayor Dear explained to Council, but he was asking for $600 for the extra work.

"Tell him we appreciate the Christmas gift very much,"

Retired alderman Fred Robinson said.

Dear then said that the normal price for such work would be approximately $1500.

Claiming that the price was "very, very fair," Alderman Chris Andersen moved that the amount be paid.

Alderman Peter Malcolm seconded the motion, with a suggestion that the contractor be "requested to make the same mistake again."

Only Alderman Robinson opposed the motion.

VOLUNTEERS NEEDED

Do you have any spare time? If so, why not be a volunteer at Springwood, 936 Mt. Newton Cross Road, either in the daytime or early evening.

Springwood is a residential training centre, operated by the Greater Victoria Association for the Retarded, for mildly retarded young adults from ages 16 - 28.

No particular skill is needed to be a volunteer, although if someone is gifted in crafts, woodwork or playing musical instruments, all the better!

Most of all, we need people who will be a friend to these retarded teenagers and who will bring a little of the community into their lives.

Give the folks at 652-1613 (that's the number at Springwood) a call to see how you can help.

IT'S THAT TIME AGAIN... back to school time, that is. These youngsters didn't seem at all reluctant to start classes Tuesday at Sidney Elementary.

A MOUNTED ESCORT accompanies these young ladies on their schoolward trek Tuesday morning.

GEORGE GLASS and friend chat beneath sign announcing parking limits - the ones George enforces twice a week in downtown Sidney.

SIDNEY RECREATION COMMISSION

Len Bland, Acting Chairman of the Sidney Recreation Commission, announces that details of the Fall '73 Sidney Recreation Programme will be finalized at a Commission meeting being held this week, and programmes and schedules released the following week (Sept. 10).

To provide a variety of recreation activities and special events for people of all ages and to keep the registration costs to a minimum, the assistance of many volunteers will be required. Volunteers are required to provide support for many aspects of the recreation programme.

Instructors, leaders, junior leaders, supervision, concession, registration, etc., provide a wide variety of opportunity for those willing to contribute an hour or so once a week or on occasion. The first volunteer information meeting will be held at Sanscha, on Tuesday, September 11, from 2 to 3 p.m. Those interested in securing more information on the recreation programme itself, and also in finding out more about the volunteer programme are invited to attend.

A volunteer work bee, is planned at Sanscha on Tuesday, September 18 from 7:30 - 9:00 p.m., to service equipment, prepare posters, etc. Anyone interested in volunteering will leave their name at the Sanscha Information Desk, on Tuesday between 2 and 4 p.m. The telephone number is 656-4914.

Now entering its third year, the Sidney Recreation Programme is sponsored by the Town of Sidney Recreation Commission and is assisted greatly by the co-operation of the Saanich Peninsula School District, Victoria Y. and Sanscha. The majority of events will take place at Sanscha. When necessary equipment and facilities are located in other areas, an activity will be held where most suitable.

Activities being planned are: creative tots, ladies keep fit, boys' and girls' mini-basketball, children's gymnastics, advanced gymnastics, badminton for juniors, intermediates and seniors (either Tuesday afternoon or Wednesday evening); volleyball for both teens and adults and junior activity programme. A varied programme is planned for Friday evenings. Family recreation, teen group, bingos, etc., will all provide recreation for many people. In addition, the Sidney Recreation Commission and Sanscha are jointly sponsoring the Smilin' Johnnie Show. Children's roller skating, ladies' yoga and teen dances are also included on the ambitious recreation schedule to be announced next week.

Accounting, Taxation, Payrolls, General Business Services. Full or Partial Service as desired. Over 25 years experience. Pick-up and Delivery Service available.

Saanich Peninsula 4-H Beef Club

by Bev Delamere

The inconvenience of the B.C. Ferry strike affected the Saanich Peninsula 4H Beef Club greatly in their efforts to get to the P.N.E. grounds. The members arrived Thursday night and waited two days for their projects to arrive at 8:00 o'clock Saturday from the Nanaimo C.P.R. Ferry after 11 hard hours on the trucks.

The determination of the club paid off when Doug Bickford won Grand Champion with his Limousin-Herford crossed steer, as well as John Speller taking Grand Champion 4H Showman.

There were 27 firsts, 15 seconds, and 6 thirds for Standing in the Ring and Showmanship.

Out of ten clubs, Saanich

Peninsula Beef came second in Interclub.

On Sunday, August 19, the P.N.E. put on competitions for Tug-O-War, Cutest Animal, and Beef Fitting. Our club placed first in Tug-o-war, third in Cutest Animal, and fifth in Beef Fitting.

On Wednesday there was a square dancing competition with Saanich Peninsula entering two squares. The Senior square placed second and Intermediate came third as well as having the best costumes.

We left the P.N.E. grounds on Thursday at 6:00 o'clock to come home on the ferries, satisfied with a very successful week.

The current bus runs every Thursday.

Wednesday and Friday are the two other days being considered for the second bus.

New Bus Run For Seniors

The New Horizons Senior Citizens free bus, which has been bringing people from the outlying areas of the peninsula to the senior citizen's centre on Resthaven Drive is hoping to put on a second bus every week.

The current bus runs every Thursday.

Wednesday and Friday are the two other days being considered for the second bus.

THE JACK SCOTT COLUMN

"Rods and reels?" the salesman said.
"Oh, that's Mr. Herman's baby. That's him down there. The bald one by the footballs." I walked across the floor of the brightly, artificially lit sports department.

Mr. Herman was leaning up against a counter, staring moodily into space. He was a morose-looking man, with a long chin.

When I blew my nose to signal my presence he looked at me wearily. A saddy, I thought.

"Something I can do for you?"

"I'm after a split-bamboo rod and a good reel. Not too expensive."

Mr. Herman's face changed instantly from plasticine to human flesh. He smiled. It took at least 10 years away from him.

"That's a coincidence," he said.

"I was just standing here day-dreaming about fishing."

He leaned forward with a conspiratorial air.

"C'mere, I want to show you something for the gods."

He grasped my arm and led me to a counter laden with fancy flies and plugs. From a cabinet behind it he took down a light casting rod.

It appeared to be made of crystal glass, like a fairy's wand. I noted the price tag, a figure that would stagger Paul Getty.

Mr. Herman held it a moment in his hand, his eyes suddenly bright, and handed it to me. It was a work of art with the balance of a fine rapier.

"When life gets dull I come over here and look at this," Mr. Herman said. "It gives me a lift."

He put the rod away reverently in its case and began to show me some reels. He handled the reels with an expert and loving touch.

Once, with the ratchet on, he whirled an expensive, imported French job and it made that wild sound a reel makes when a heavy fish first strikes. We grinned foolishly at each other.

"You know, I used to be in ladies' shoes," Mr. Herman said reflectively, "and I asked for a transfer here when there was an opening. I love fishing like some men love music. Thought I'd be in seventh heaven. Hasn't 'xactly worked out that way, though."

"How come?"

"Well, it's hard to explain. It's like a ... well, it's like a guy who's crazy to fly, but only gets into airplanes that are on the ground. That's not 'xactly it, either. It's more like a guy in the world's most expensive wine cellar without a corkscrew."

"Everything here but the water and the fish?"

"That's it. I was probably better off in the laides' shoes. At least I wasn't always wishing I were some place else. Most of the time, but not always."

"Of course, I'm not the only one. We've a fellow here who's crazy for golf."

"He's always picking up a club and taking his stance and wiggling the club. I know just how the poor guy feels."

When I selected the equipment I was after, we talked fishing and I told Mr. Herman about losing a big one because of my ineptness with the net.

"I'll show you that," Mr. Herman said.

He selected a rod and a net and I followed him across the sports department to a 16-foot aluminum boat that was on display.

"Get in," he said.

I got in and sat in the stern seat. Mr. Herman took the middle seat.

He held the rod high and began winding in the reel.

"All right," he said, staring intently down at the floor over the gunwale of the boat.

"She's well-hooked and well-played and we're bringing her in..."

Two or three people had stopped to stare at us.

A small boy was standing with his mouth open at the boat's bow.

I felt a little foolish and glanced sharply at Mr. Herman. He was a thousand miles away, fighting an enormous fish and very close to victory.

"...and you take the net—so! and she's yours!"

Mr. Herman lifted the net and dropped the invisible fish to the floorboards. I thought I heard him grunt.

The joyous, intent look faded swiftly on his face as he noticed the bystanders.

He laughed in an embarrassed, mirthless way.

"I'll go and wrap your parcels," he said.
